Support from Centre for Environmental and Climate Research – CEC

» CEC supports applications for external grants that contribute to the development of integrated environmental and climate science at Lund University in order to strengthen the scientific foundation for sustainable development.

» Support is provided subject to the availability of resources and when other priorities so allows.

» www.cec.lu.se

Who can get support?

» In kind support can be given to applications by any researcher/postdoc/PhD-student associated with CEC/BECC/MERGE including CEC fellows, as well as applications for postdocs and other positions connected to CEC/BECC/MERGE (as long as a CEC fellow is involved e.g. as host).

» Additional support can be applied for by CEC Fellows as well as CEC employees and Guest researchers.

What is CEC Fellows??
CEC invites all PhD graduates active in the centre’s fields of research to be part of the CEC Fellows. This network is created as a meeting place for collective expertise and as a forum for exchange of ideas of researchers within CEC, with the aim of achieving CEC’s vision and encouraging bottom-up influence and leadership.

Figure 4: Suggested scheme for workflow regarding small or individual projects.
Table 1. Support provided to apply for external grants. In provided “in kind”, A can be applied for. The three different types of support (type a, b and c) corresponds to how large the project may be, and who is involved. This is explained in section 3, and more specifically in figure 3 and 4.
